Rent Subsidized High Rise For Seniors to Open in April

KINGSTON — A high-rise, low-rent senior citizens housing project, resurrected from near oblivion at least three times in the past several years, is scheduled to open for occupancy on April 1, bearing the name of the man who,its developers say, deserves the credit for making it a reality.

Alexander Yosman Tower is the first six-story residential building in the county. And its 100 studio and one-bedroom apartments are filled with extra features like electric outlets a foot above floor level so that elderly residents don't have to bend to the floor, and lowered kitchen cabinets which shorter seniors can reach without stretching.

Aims to 'Improve Relations with U.S.'

Amin Will Allow Americans to Leave

NAIROBI, Kenya(UPI) — In a dramatic turnabout, Uganda President Idi Amin said today all Americans were free to leave his country — a move apparently aimed at improving strained relations with Washington.

"Americans are now free to travel anywhere in Uganda or leave the country if they wish," Radio Uganda quoted Amin as saying.

It also quoted a "presidential spokesman" — interpreted to mean Amin himself — as saying Uganda wished to "improve relations with the United States" but gave no further reason for his change of mind.

In Washington, the White House had no immediate comment, but a spokesman said "that sounds pretty good."

Radio Uganda said a scheduled meeting Wednesday between Amin and the approximately 240 Americans in Uganda had been postponed indefinitely.

Amin said Wednesday's meeting originally had been requested by the Americans themselves and had not been ordered by him.

"All American nationals should be free to go about their previous plans such as going for their normal leave or carrying on their business in or outside Uganda," the radio quoted Amin as saying.

But he ordered all provincial governors to report to his office Wednesday with documents drawn up by the Americans at his request giving their views on life in Uganda and any problems they had in living there.

President Idi Amin

The radio repeated earlier statements by Amin that the Americans in Uganda "were directly under his command and not the command of President Carter who is new and fresh in office" and he indicated Carter was not properly conversant with African affairs.

He said there was no cause for alarm for the safety of the Americans who had been "working very hard in Uganda, hand in hand with Ugandans."

Amin earlier had barred the Americans from leaving the East African country until they appeared before him.

Last Friday Amin ordered the Americans, mostly missionaries, to bring "a listing of their possessions" to a meeting with him Monday in Kamapala. The meeting was later delayed until Wednesday and rescheduled for Entebbe. That second meeting then was postponed indefinitely.

Radio Uganda said Amin met informally at Entebbe airport Monday with a group of white Americans and assured them he had "nothing against them."

The broadcast said Amin told them them the world press had "misunderstood" his orders.

"Ugandans are your brothers and sisters...enjoy yourselves," Amin told the group, which included mainly American employes of Uganda Airlines.

Radio Uganda also announced that Zaire's President Mobutu Sese-Seko had cabled Amin seeking assurances for the safety of Americans. The radio said Amin has replied that "there is no cause for alarm."

A Kenyan newspaper, the Daily Nation, reported Monday that Americans already had begun gathering in the capital and were under "strict security surveillance."

But the newspaper said the Americans rode around the city and shopped in stores without interference.

Funding Still Undecided

Legal Service Awaits Fate

KINGSTON — The county's Legal Services Project is still dangling on a departmental string, waiting to hear whether or not the year-old operation will be given money to keep its doors open.

Managing Attorney Bryan Hetherington said this morning that the fate of three para-legals of his five person office now rests with the Regional Legal Services Corp. in New York City— and that group won't make a final decision until sometime around March 23.

Legal Services provides free or low cost attorneys for persons with civil court problems like housing and rent disputes, welfare hearings and migrant advocacy.

If the office is shut down, people who can't afford private attornies will be left "pounding sand" according to Hetherington, who adds that's exactly what is happening now to persons walking into their Wall Street office.

Legal Services stopped taking any new cases last month when the money crunch first surfaced, because they didn't want to drop any clients in the middle of litigation.

Hetherington and his staff of three para-legals and a secretary have made a committment to see any exisisting cases through, even if it means commuting out of the main office in Poughkeepsie to do it.

"The people from Regional were up evaluating the whole project last week, but we still don't know what their decision will be...we're in a waiting phase, waiting to hear from those people with absolute power over us'" he said.

If the federal corporation funding doesn't come through the three para-legals would have to be dropped immediately and Hetherington and the secretary would be re-assigned to another office because a two-person staff is inadequate to handle caseloads.

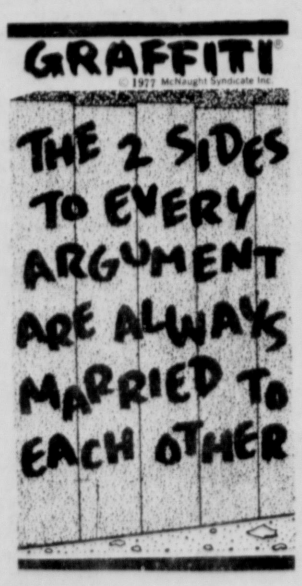
The para-legals will remain on the payroll through March 23 , using up accumulated vacation time. The office had initially been told their funding would run out today.

World in Brief

Carter Is Meeting Soviet Dissident

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter's outspokenness on human rights has resulted in a meeting today with Soviet dissident Vladimir Bukovsky.

The meeting was requested by the Soviet author, who recently was released from a Russian prison and exiled. In reply, the President extended an invitation to Bukovsky to visit the White House.



'Rochester' Dies Of Heart Attack

WOODLAND HILLS, Calif. — One of America's most beloved comedians, Eddie "Rochester" Anderson, died of a heart attack Monday at the Motion Picture Home and Hospital, where he was admitted in December, hospital officials said.

Anderson, the first black to win a permanent network radio role, was a fixture on the Jack Benny radio and television series for 23 years. For decades, the series drew laughs from Benny's frustrations with Rochester.

Train Collision Kills 22 in Spain

BARCELONA, Spain (UPI) — Two crowded commuter trains collided in suburban San Andres de la Barca Monday, killing 22 persons and injuring at least 85. Both engineers on the trains were among those killed.

Railway officials blame the crash on one engineer, who ran a red light. The trains — carrying 300 persons — hit with such force one of the engines was catapulted onto a highway that paralleled the track. Rescue teams had to use chain saws and blow torches to free the injured and the bodies from the wreckage.

Global Solution Sought on Ozone

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In an address prepared for the start of a nine-day international meeting on the ozone layer in the Earth's upper atmosphere and how it is affected by humans, Dr. Robert M. White, America's chief weatherman, said, "We are involved in a problem that is truly global in scope and that is why your meeting is of such importance."

Ozone, a cousin to the oxygen we breathe, acts as a radiation shield, preventing harmful amounts of ultraviolet solar radiation from reaching the ground.

Reportedly Blasted Dutchess House with Shotgun

Man Charged With Murder Try

WAPPINGERS — An Ulster County man is being held today on charges of attempted murder after he allegedly shot up an unnamed Dutchess County woman's house.

Using a shotgun, LeRoy Allen Smith, 34, of South Maountain Road, Gardiner, reportedly made five 'hits' at the home on Route 9D, Wappingers. One shot went through a window in the living area of the house, Fishkill State Police report.

Smith is being held in Dutchess County Jail in lieu of $10,000 bail, pending another court appearance.

Several firearms were confiscated by Lt. J. F. Ryan, at the time of the early morning arrest.

Police were called to the scene at 2 a.m. They declined to identify the woman or the motive for the attempted murder.

City Employes Start Punching Clocks

City workers will have to get used to this.

KINGSTON— "A little bit of a grumbling" was heard around City Hall yesterday morning as employes began using the newly installed time clocks.

"It's too soon to tell what effect they will have," said one city worker, "but nobody cheats on their time anyway so we don't think the clocks will cause any problems."

The worker noted that city officials have assured employes they will be given time off for personal matters when necessary.

According to Mayor Francis R. Koenig, the time clocks will provide the city with more up to date information for employe benefits and "give us a better control factor which will benefit the taxpayers."

Added Koenig: "Everybody will benefit from the time clocks."

Employes of the Board of Public Works have always used the clocks, and recreation department employes will begin "punching in" in the near future.

His Stamp of Approval

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Postal Service is the best in the world and the 13-cent first class postage stamp is a big bargain. M.A. Wright, chairman of the service's board of governors, says so.

"When you pay 13 cents for a postage stamp you are buying about 49 seconds worth of postal employe time," he said at the Commission on Postal Service, set up by Congress last year to investigate postal problems and file recommendations by March 15.

"For less than one minute's worth of time, your letter will be delivered anywhere in the United States," Wright says. "This is truly a remarkable achievement."

He also said: "When compared with other postal systems around the world, its comparatively low rates and high performance put it at the top of the list."

Wright said it should continue to be operated by an independent government agency instead of being returned to political control as it was before the former Post Office Department was abolished in 1970.

Would-Be Rapist Dozed

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The Louisiana Supreme Court has upheld the conviction of a man who fell asleep while attempting to rape a woman.

Rayfield Hoffman was accused of breaking into the victim's apartment on Christmas, 1974. He was convicted in 1975 of attempted aggravated rape.

When police arrived, Hoffman was found asleep in the victim's bed, naked except for underwear around his knees. A hammer was found in the bed near his feet.

Mamma Whale Knew Better

RANCHO PALOS VERDES, Calif. (UPI) — Trainers at Marineland know now why Corky the killer whale put on some weight and began balking at some of her routine tricks in the oceanarium's show.

Corky delivered a baby killer whale, the first of its species conceived and born alive in captivity, according to Marineland.

Trainers had begun to suspect Corky might be pregnant because she appeared to be gaining weight — at her normal 5½ tons, it was difficult to tell — and slowed down some. Also Orky, the 6-ton male who shares her tank, became more protective of her.

While a television crew was filming a commercial at the tank, Orky suddenly placed himself between the crew and his mate. Corky went into labor, delivering a 6-foot-long, 125-pound calf and nosing it to the surface for its first breath of air.

Trainers said they were handicapped by lack of knowledge of newborn killer whales, but to all appearances mother and daughter were doing well.

Deterrent to Capital Punishment, His View

Cop Killer Would Have His Execution Televised

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Joseph James, on death row for killing another man, says that if the electric chair is to be his fate, he wants the event televised as a deterrent to capital punishment.

One of two men on New York's death row, James said televising his execution would present so horrible a picture as to make him a "martyr" in the fight against capital punishment, according to an article in the Albany Times-Union.

However, James, interviewed with court permission at the Green Haven Correctional Facility at Stormville, said he was no Gary Gilmore. He said that to want to be put to death like Gilmore would be "crazy".

The 30-year-old James was sentenced to die last November after being convicted of first degree murder in the September 1975 death of George Motchan, a New York City corrections officer.

Motchan was shot while escorting James from the Brooklyn House of Correction to Kings County Hospital for oral surgery. James was in jail facing second degree murder charges stemming from the shooting death of a Brooklyn storekeeper.

James admitted killing Motcham, but said he never intended it to happen. His Jan. 9 execution date was stayed by appeal.

James said of the electric chair, which has not been used in New York State since 1963, "This society would put a cat or a dog to death in a more human way than it would kill a person."

Capital punishment is authorized under New York law for a conviction of killing a peace officer.

Thruway 'Take' Gains

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Revenues from the state Thruway totaled $132.8 million last year, up 7.8 per cent from 1975.

The increase reflected a "slowly improving economy" and a toll increase which went into effect in July 1975, Thruway Authority Chairman Gerald Cummins said Monday.

Passenger car tolls totaled $78.7 million, up 7.9 per cent from the 1975 figure of $73.0 million, the authority said. Truck and bus tolls amounted to $36.9 million, up $3.8 million or 11.3 per cent from 1975.

Among other revenues the Thruway Authority received $4.3 million as its share of the profits from the operation of 30 service stations and $4.0 million from 28 food facilities on the 559-mile superhighway.

The authority said the food revenues jumped 38.5 per cent over the 1975 level because of higher rental rates included in a new contract with Gladieux Food Services.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO THE NEW YORK STATE SOCIAL SERVICES PLAN FOR 1976-1977

Title XX of The Federal Social Security Act

This proposed amendment is being made to: (1) establish a statewide fee schedule for day care services; (2) revise the definition of social group services for senior citizens; (3) establish group eligibility determination for social group services for senior citizens; (4) revise the definition of protective services for children and bring the provision of all child protective and related supportive services under Title XX; and (5) revise the definition of protective services for adults.

The public is invited to comment on this amendment in writing. Comments should be addressed to either the State Department of Social Services or any of the local social services districts (addresses below). Comments will be accepted from the date of publication of this proposed amendment to and including March 31, 1977. The proposed effective date of this amendment is April 1, 1977.

Explanation of Amendment

Day Care Fees: The two day care fee schedules now in effect in different regions of the State have caused some disparities in fees being charged for these services. This amendment is intended to eliminate the disparities by imposing a standard statewide fee schedule. Fees are to begin at the 62% level of the State's median income level for all family sizes for both income eligibles and recipients and to extend to the maximum level of eligibility now permitted in the State.

This amendment will not affect income eligibility standards now in effect for day care services.

Revised Definition of Social Group Services for Senior Citizens: The definition of social group services for senior citizens is being expanded to more accurately reflect the activities of senior citizen centers. It is proposed that the definition of this service be amended to read as follows: "Those services provided to older adults, through specialized community facilities which serve as focal points for their concerns, needs and interests for such multiple purposes as combating isolation, preventing or delaying physical and mental deterioration, diminishing the effects of loss of role and status, providing centralized accessibility to services and enabling the aged to remain in their homes or community for as long as possible. Services available in these centers include: information and referral, nutrition (congregate meals), counseling, employment counseling, recreation and educational programs, transportation to and from user's home and facilities, health maintenance services, community service volunteer opportunities, leadership development, facilitation of other agencies services, advocacy, and outreach."

Establishment of Group Eligibility Determination for Social Group Services for Senior Citizens: As a result of the passage of P.L. 94-401, in September 1976, New York State has the option to select services that will be covered by group eligibility, except for day care services for non-migrant children. Group eligibility refers to determination of eligibility for social services on a group basis, dependent upon characteristics such as geographic area in which the services will be provided, nature of the service, conditions of eligibility other than income, etc. Under P.L. 94-401, group eligibility may be used only when the State can demonstrate that substantially all of the recipients of a service have monthly family gross incomes not exceeding 90 percent of the State median income adjusted for family size. The State has determined that social group services for senior citizens are appropriate for application of "group eligibility" retroactive to October 1, 1975. The criterion for "group eligibility" is that each participant shall be at least 60 years of age.

The geographic area will be the State, with optional provision of this service allowed in each local component of the Title XX Plan. Social group services for senior citizens was selected for "group eligibility" because it has been demonstrated that this group generally has homogeneous income characteristics and would readily meet the eligibility criterion set by the Federal Government for group services.

Revised Definition of Protective Services for Children: The re-definition allows for the provision of appropriate ameliorative services for up to a six-month period without requiring a determination of financial eligibility. The provision of related, supportive services for a period up to six months following the receipt of an alleged child abuse or maltreatment report will permit the local district to provide such services under Title XX for the three-month "pre-determination" period and, if necessary, for a three-month period subsequent to confirming the circumstances of abuse or maltreatment. Should supportive services be necessary beyond that point, the local agency will have the opportunity to explore other resources.

A new sub-paragraph (i) will be added to the definition of protective services for children will be added to read as follows: "Providing directly or arranging for, either through purchase or referral, the provision of day care or homemaker services for a period of up to six months following the receipt of a report by the New York State Abuse and Maltreatment Register and a determination of programmatic need for such service, based upon investigation of the report."

Additionally, the following statement will replace current wording under "Funding Under Other Programs:" "After expiration of the six-month period for provision of related supportive services as a protective service for children, related supportive services may be provided under the respective CASSPP definitions if continuing programmatic need and financial eligibility are established."

Revised Definition of Protective Services for Adults: The proposed addition is recommended because of the need to enlarge on the local agency's capacity to alleviate crisis situations by providing concrete help which may enable incapacitated persons to remain in their own homes with the assistance of homemaker/housekeeper/chore services.

The provisions requiring exploration of the availability of other resources and improving a time limit of service provisions will: restrict unnecessary expenditures, give the agencies more latitude in meeting those emergencies which require immediate action, and permit time to initiate procedures necessary for more permanent, long-term planning.

The definition of protective services for adults is being amended to add a sub-paragraph (j) to the service activities to read as follows: "Providing homemaker and housekeeper/chore services to meet the goal of protection for adults who demonstrate specific functional deficits. The provision of such services is to be limited to 60 days when provided without regard to financial criteria and only when efforts to secure funding from client or other resources have failed." As a result of this change, the sub-division entitled "Categories of Individuals Eligible Under Title XX" will be amended to read as follows: "All individuals without regard to income, except as provided in item (j)."

Further explanation of these proposed changes and copies of the proposed amendment are available without charge at these addresses:

Quit Smoking Volunteer Leaders Told: You Can Help Save Lives

KINGSTON— The purpose of the American Cancer Society's Quit Smoking Program is "to save lives," George M. Saunders of California, the national consultant for the Cancer Society, told about 20 potential volunteer leaders at the Quit Smoking Training Program at the Holiday Inn Monday.

"Your real intention is to save lives," Saunders said, "You can save more lives than any surgeon working with cancer surgery because you get the patient before the problem exists."

The training program was held to explain the content and techniques of the Quit Smoking Program to area residents who might be interested in being a 'facilitator,' or leader, of a Cancer Society Quit Smoking Program.

Saunders stressed the idea that it is important for the volunteer to think of him or herself as a facilitator rather than an instructor because participants in the program "want to talk to each other," rather than listen to lectures. The facilitator's role is to guide discussion and to offer subjects for thought and discussion that will make the participants think seriously about their smoking habits.

One of the first important steps of the program, Saunders said, is to help the smoker identify just what kind of a smoker he or she is; a habitual smoker, a tension smoker, a reflex smoker, a craving smoker, a nervous smoker, a relaxation smoker or a stimulation smoker. In identifying the cause of the habit, Saunders said, the facilitator can help the smoker develop a new habit to replace that of smoking.

Lecture being given at Holiday Inn.

The group leader is "the missing link to the people who have already quit smoking and know how to do it" and people who are ready to try, said Saunders.

Saunders told the potential volunteers that it is important to remember the smoker's special problems. Although most people at the training program indicated by a show of hands they were ex-smokers, Saunders said that it is too easy to forget the problem each had trying to quit and that it is imperative that any program facilitator take nothing for granted in regards to how the program participants feel.

"You must see smoking through the smokers' eyes," Saunders said,"you can't assume anything."

In the afternoon session of the day-long program, Saunders explained the content of each of the eight two-hour meetings that the program entails. The first four sessions, Saunders said, have to do with the facilitator's in-put. The first session "deals with ambivalence- do I want to quit?," Saunders said. The second and third deal with motivation, helping the smoker find a reason for wanting to quit whether it be for his or her health, to set a better example for children, or a number of other reasons, said Saunders. He said the fourth session is devoted to helping the smokers understand why they smoke.

It is not until this point that smokers are asked to try to stop smoking. They are asked to go for 48 hours without a cigarette. (Saunders said that sometimes program participants are disappointed that the facilitaor doesn't demand that they stop smoking at the first session.)

The fifth session, Saunders told volunteers, is devoted to discussing how the participants felt about not smoking for the trial period and how and why they did or did not make it through the 48 hours without smoking. This is the time, said Saunders, for each person to make the permanent decision of whether he or she will give up smoking.

The final three sessions are devoted to discussion about the problems that the participants are having and other aspects of smoking and not smoking.

A Quit Smoking Program will begin in Kingston on March 8. It will meet on Tuesday and Thursday evenings at Kingston High School. The program, directed by Don Hooton, of Highland, wi ll be limited to 20 people. Interested people may register at the American Cancer Society office on 400 Broadway, or by calling 331-8300. There is a $12 registration fee, $5 of which is refundable upon the completion of the program.

Area Inmates (Butt)ing Out

NAPANOCH — In a program that is being called everything from innovative to historic, inmates at the Eastern Corrections Facility here have successfully set up what they believe is the nation's first prison stop-smoking clinic.

What began with a letter from the facility's Italian American Residents Association to the county Cancer Society has billowed into an anti-cigarette campaign in which inmates train, counsel and support each other in an effort to kick the habit for better physical and psychological health.

"There is so much to this that it's difficult to put it into words," says Mrs. Pat Yaeger, Cancer Society representative and volunteer coordinator of the prison project.

"These men put this thing together themselves...it's a tremendous lesson in the use of trust...I know of 12 who have stopped completely since the program started,' she says.

After receiving the inmates' letter last May Mrs. Yaeger sent out the training manuals and suggested reading lists that the Cancer Society uses in its community stop-smoking program.

The men taught themselves the basics and conducted their first 10-week session with some support from Society volunteers.

"They meet every Sunday night for two hours, talk about the different reasons why they smoke, what their pressures are," explains Mrs. Yaeger.

"The question everyone asks is why these men would want to stop smoking? They're in a very frustrating environment, there aren't the abundance of outlets for them...I think it comes down to the fact that they want to feel they're doing something constructive rather than destructive for themselves."

When Mrs. Yaeger talks about the program she beams.

"I'm so proud of those guys...I just can't tell you," she says.

Prison officials also expressed some positive feelings about the precedent-setting program.

"It's most commendable," said Paul Kimelman, deputy superintendent for program services.

"The inmates deserve full credit for their energy in identifying a problem area and communicating this need to other inmates...they've done an exemplary job," he said.

The initial organizers, all members of the Italian American Association, were Rick Reichardt, Luigi John Burro, Louis Shavell and Ray Argibay.

Shavell and Argibay are currently conducting the third 10-week session at the facility. About 45 men have already gone through the program. Twelve have quit smoking completely, some are taking the sessions again because they couldn't quite give up the cigarettes completely — but they all support each others efforts, says Mrs. Yaeger.

The Residents Association has also expressed its thanks to Mrs. Yaeger for her support by making her an honorary member of the Association because of "her devoted assistance."

"They told me that every Italian-American politician in the country is also an honorary member, so I'm in good company," she says smiling.

The American Cancer Society is just gearing up for a five-year stop-smoking campaign, and the Napanoch experiment may prove to be the model used all over the country to help bring previously forgotten prison populations into the health-oriented program.

Senate Bill Aids Farm Families

FARM TAXES

The Senate passed a bill to aid farm families by cutting the estate tax on farms. A similar measure was vetoed by Gov. Hugh Carey last year on technical grounds, but the proposal was altered in an effort to overcome those difficulties this year.

The bill, sponsored by Senate Majority Leader Warren Anderson, also would provide for exemption credits for property used for farming purposes.

O'CONNELL REACTION

State Democratic leaders reacted to the death of Daniel O'Connell, Albany County party leader for a half-century, with praise for the political patriarch.

Gov. Carey said O'Connell, who was 91, "will continue in politics as a legend. He was one of the most extraordinary figures in the history of American politics. Assembly Speaker Stanley Steingut said O'Connell "left an historic mark".

Loan Braces State Jobless Fund

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — The state's unemployment insurance fund will go broke next week or the week after, but a $150 million federal loan has been approved to keep the fund solvent, a Labor Department spokesman said Monday.

The fund, under the pressure of continuing high joblessness, has shrunk from $1.2 billion two years ago to approxmiately $71 million as of Feb. 18.

Since the first of the year, $203 million in jobless benefits has been paid out of the fund, at an average weekly rate in excess of $20 million.

A temporary federal loan has been processed and $150 million credited to the state's UI fund to guarantee that benefits will be paid through the first quarter of the year.

Because the UI tax on employers is collected on a quarterly basis, revenues from the first three months of the year will get the fund out of the red in April. Additional borrowing may be necessary later in the year, however, depending on improvement of the unemployment figures.

The question of whether or not the UI tax rate should be increased could come up at the current legislative session. Also, an increase in the taxable wage base could be another proposal to make the fund more fiscally solid.

Benedictine: Stick to Your Guns

Dear Editor:

We support Sr. Mary Charles in her courageous rejection of the constant proposals from Kingston Hospital officials to merge the complete facilities of obstetrics and pediatrics.

It is encouraging and vital to see belief that cannot be shaken or watered down by subtle compromise.

Our daily prayers are fervently with the Benedictine nuns and all who share their "philosophy." May God keep them strong and bring them victory for the good of all and to His glory.

Cricket for State Insect

Dear Editor:

One minor correction on your story concerning the praying mantis as state insect nominee, and the Freeman's statement that no other state has a state insect. An Illinois visitor pointed out to me that his state does indeed have a state insect, the butterfly.

As a suggestion for consideration as state insect, think about the cheerful cricket, a sign of good fortune, an indication that everything is on the up and up and sportsmanlike, and, in the male, a great singer (particularly to the female, who must be a good listener, another desirable trait.) For male chauvinists, it might be noted that only the male produces sound.

To please the artistic, it comes in a variety of colors including black, brown, and light yellowish green. They don't eat their mates (a la praying mantis) but they do enjoy the remains of other insects (in what must be assumed be an environmentally-approved fashion). Educationally attuned, they also digest parts of books— the bindings.

And of course, baseball, our national pasttime, is derived from the game of cricket.

For the religiously-inclined student voter who may balk at the cannibalistic praying mantis, there exists the Mormon cricket; for animal-lovers, the camel cricket ; and for the ethnically-minded, the Jerusalem cricket—none of which are the true crickets but which must be overjoyed to be thought of as such.

Let the cricket join the noble family of State symbols— the rose, the sugar maple, and the —whatever the state bird is. Excelsior!

Monnells Are Not Anti-Zoning

Dear Editor:

My wife and I wish to thank our friends, neighbors, the DAV Chapter 156 and everyone who contributed to the defense fund set up in our behalf by Joe Hasset and Vince DeStasio.

While we have not been able to attain our personal goal we are using this money for a lawyer to see that our legal rights are protected.

But the most satisfying result that has been achieved, especially in Marbletown, is the growing public interest in the zoning law. More people come to the meetings to speak out pro and con on every application being processed. The law is in the process of revision and correction.

We have never been anti-zoning, but sincerely believe as one neighbor, Mrs. Dunbar, put it, "It is not the law, which can be changed to fit the town needs, but the administration of the law which can cause the law to be respected or disrespected."

Do Atom Plants Bring Snow?

Dear Editor:

The Buffalo area has had approximately 160 inches of snow so far this winter.

Just outside of Buffalo is a nuclear waste recycling plant; I am left with no alternative but to conclude that this recycling plant is directly related to this weather.

I shudder to think what will happen to our glorious apple industry in the Hudson Valley where they want to build a multitude of Atomic Power Plants. Why we might wake up some winter morning and find ourselves under some 300 inches of snow. By the way 160 inches of snow is approximately 13 feet of snow—OUCH.

PHILIP GURRIERI

P.S. Heavy snow storms have been forming around the area in North Carolina where there is also a nuclear reprocessing plant.

Green Isn't A Bad Hue

Dear Editor:

In your front page article of Feb. 20, "Mantis Movement Bugs Hinchey," he stated that the color of the insect — "green, represents envy and illness and I don't know if that's what we want to project." Green is also th color of plants and money and the life they bring to this planet. If the praying mantis were red like our state flower, how long could it be a predator without being spotted? Camouflage in nature is the name of the game: ask any snowshoe rabbit.

Why not make the praying mantis the state insect? After all, it was the European Mantis religiosa, which was first introduced in Rochester, that has helped to control a number of pesty insects. It is a predatory insect just like the Great American Bald Eagle is a predatory bird. Besides, the publicity the Mantis will get will help its preservation.

The fact that no other state has named a state insect is even more reason to do so. Can you imagine what arthropods will be left to choose from when the 49th and 50th states name their insects—fly? mosquito?

City Bowlers Raised $600

Dear Editor:

Please allow me the opportunity to publicly thank the management and employes of both the Hoe Bowl On The Hill and Ferraro's Mid-City Lanes, as well as the league secretaries and bowlers who participated in the Sweetheart Sweeps the week of Feb. 13 through Feb. 18. As a result of this fund raising event almost $600 was raised on behalf of the Juvenile Diabetes Foundation to support diabetes research.

I would also like to commend the Freeman for the fine article in the "LIFE" Section of Sunday's issue (Feb. 20) concerning patients awaiting the kidney unit in the Kingston Hospital which should serve as an example of just how important it is for the public to support JDF.

The complication pointed out in this article, complications due to diabetes, is the reason JDF is working so hard to support research. Contrary to what many people believe, insulin is not a cure. It only helps to bring about a certain amount of control of the disease, but not enough to prevent kidney failure which kills one half of all juvenile diabetics within 25 years of diagnosis. Other complications include blindness, stroke and gangrene.

The Juvenile Diabetes Foundation is an organization of volunteers dedicated to supporting research relating to diabetes. More than 81 per cent of funds raised by JDF nationally is allocated to research. During the month of May we wll be conducting a door-to-door canvass of Ulster County soliciting contributions. We must, however, have more volunteers. Anyone interested in participating in the drive should contact Paul Misove, Jr. drive charirman, for the county, Ron Smith or Ted Benson, co-chairmen for the City of Kingston, myself, or write, JDF, Box 24, Lake Katrine, 12449.

I urge you to do it today so you won't be sorry tomorrow.

Pinochet and Chilean Rights

In the previous dispatch on the subject I mentioned the missing Chilean labor leaders, and the frustration in ascertaining whether they were vaporized by the Chilean secret police. Behold the succeeding events. First, the families of the missing 13 men petitioned to a Court of Appeals to name a judge to take over the investigation. Then a rapid succession of events.

1) The relevant department in the Chilean government comes up with copies of exit visas given to eight of the named men.

2) The Chilean government requests Argentina to search through its records to see whether there is a record of these men entering Argentina, since they were last seen headed in that direction.

3) After a few days' delay, the Argentine government reveals that four of the men did indeed enter Argentina during the first week in February.

What about the rest? I quote from El Melcurio, the principal daily in Santiago: "The chief of (immigration) in Mendoza, Juan Cortes, in a telephone conversation...said that the requests for infomation had been forwarded to Buenos Aires. 'There is a delay of two years in the archives,' he explained. 'We believe that this could result in delaying a little the validation of any immigration into Argentina, of whatever person.' "

Consider the infuriating aspects of the above story. Ten men are alleged by Amnesty International, on 23 December 1976, to have disappeared. Again, on that same day La Tercera , another widely read daily, reported that the Supreme Court had accepted the case of Carlos Humberto Contreras, a Communist and ex-councilman for the city of Concepcion who disappeared in November. This is the first writ of habeas Corpus handed down by the Supreme Court since the government took power. If the press is free, we will sooner or later learn the truth.

The truth? "Our fight to maintain high the prestige of Chile," President Pinochet told me, "has consisted in telling the truth, in repeating the truth, in insisting on the truth. When there has been an abuse of human rights," he in turn insisted, "we have recognized it, and proceeded to investigate and punish severely the person responsible. But the capacity for invention that Communism has is incredible and it is perfectly financed by the Kremlin in a monstrous campaign throughout the western world."

About this there is no doubt. The day's news — so full of Chilean events — brings also the item courtesy of Messrs. Evans and Novak. Orlando Letelier, the former foreign minister of Allende who was assassinated in Washington last fall, wrote in March to the daughter of Salvador Allende residing in Chile a letter he closed by saying, "Perhaps some day, not far away, we (Chileans) will be able to do what has been done in Cuba." That spokesman was of the government stubbornly denominated by the liberal press as "the democratic government of Allende."

Variously, that number becomes 13, or eight. In early February, four of them went into Argentina. Question: What were they doing between mid-December when they disappeared and early February? Question: Why did they not communicate their whereabouts to their friends or family? Question: Where are the balance? Question: If Argentina's immigration records are two years behind, how is it that they came up with the records on the four?

All that is established clearly is that here is a clear record of four men who are apparently alive and well enough to travel who were widely thought of as having been killed by the Chileans. At this writing, the public has yet to hear from them, it is unbelievable that the Argentines are lying in the matter: they would not assume unnecessarily the burden of having last exercised authority over the four Chileans — they have enough troubles of their own. So that the charge of the Pinochet government concerning the "desaparecidos" — the missing ones — that they left the country, and decline to identify themselves in order to embarrass the Chilean government — is at least to the extent of the missing four, sustained. Oh yes, the missing men are members of the Communist Party.

The heartening development is that all of this comes out now in the Chilean Press. On the same day in which these details transpired, El Mercurio published a heated editorial denouncing the junta for closing down the radio station, Balmaceda.

Can This News Show Be Saved?

WASHINGTON—Whenever I have nothing else to do I start worrying about Barbara Walters and Harry Reasoner. There have been so many stories floating around about how they're not getting along together that the president of ABC News has had to call a press conference to deny then.

What worries ABC is that if the viewers believe the stories they might switch to another network. The public is accustomed to getting bad news from around the world, but they become very nervous if they think there is domestic strife between the people giving them the tidings.

I, for one, don't believe the rumors. I know that although Barbara and Harry have their differences—he likes to hang out in bars complaining she doesn't understand him, she prefers to stay in the studio interviewing heads of state—they have a deep affection for each other that just doesn't come over on the screen. I think it's up to ABC News to dramatize this.

Fortunately, there are now independent TV consultants who get paid vast sums of money to jazz up news shows. I sought out one the other day named Jefferson Cathode, and asked what he would do if he were hired to revamp the Reasoner-Walters show and make it a happier one for the TV public.

"The first thing I would do," he said, "would be to change the set. Instead of Barbara and Harry sitting in two chairs at two separate desks, I would place them in a loveseat, holding hands.

"Barbara would say 'I'm Babs,' and Harry would say 'I'm Hal, and we're here tonight to give you the evening news. What happened today, Babs?'

"'There was a terrible Amtrak derailment in Omaha, Hal. Thirteen people were injured and two are still in the hospital.'

"'Well, Babs, if you think that was bad, California is having the worst drought of the century.'

"'Oh, Hal, what are those poor people going to do?'

"Harry would then put his arm around Barbara and say, 'Don't worry, dear, they've instituted a rigid water rationing plan and they'll make it somehow.'

"'Hal, did you know Cyrus Vance has just completed his swing through the Middle East and he expects to report back to President Carter tomorrow?'

"'No, I didn't know that. Where did you hear it?'

"'It was on the AP wire.'

"'What a wonderful reporter you are, Babs.'

"'You taught me everything I know, Hal. I don't think I could have ever left the Today show if it hadn't been for you.'

"Harry would squeeze her hand. 'Babs, I didn't teach you anything. You are a born anchorwoman.'

"'You're just saying that,' Babs would blush.

"Harry would then read a dispatch. 'Babs, the attorney general may indict as many as seven congressmen for accepting bribes from the South Korean government.'

"'What a wonderful story, Hal. Only somebody like you would dig it up.'

"'Babs, that's what I get paid for. I don't earn as much as you do, but then again you have all those specials you have to produce.'

"'I think the most marvelous thing about you, Hal, is that you're truly liberated. Most anchormen would be furious if they thought they were making less money than their anchorwoman"

"Harry would reply, 'All I want for us is to have a good news program. The fact that we're happy doing the show together means more to me than the $675,987.00 extra you get every year.'

"Barbara would clutch Harry's arm and say, 'I think the reason we get along so well together is that I get plenty of sleep, make sure I get enough vitamins and take Geritol every day.'

"Harry would then look straight into the camera, smile, and say, 'My anchorwoman—I think I'll keep her.'"

Startling IRS Files On Hughes

WASHINGTON — The secret files of the late Howard Hughes strip him of the mystery he used to hide behind. Yet these fascinating files, now in the custody of the Internal Revenue Service, raise some startling new questions.

The improbable Hughes was deeply involved with the Central Intelligence Agency in some of its darkest operations, including the attempts on the life of Cuba's Fidel Castro. Hughes' man in Washington, Robert Bennett, also worked closely with the Watergate plotters.

Yet the files portray Hughes as a pathetic, if eccentric, old man who slowly wasted away — a dope addict, of uncertain sanity, who measused time by enemas. A staff memo, for instance, called his attention to a statement he had made "several enemas ago."

He spent his last years confined in an asylum of his own creation, alternately making multimillion-dollar decisions and issuing elaborate instructions on the disposal of his penthouse waste. Once, he directed that it be removed in a "taped brown sack" and "dumped into some refuse container" far removed from the hotel.

In the end, he died of sheer neglect although he was surrounded by doctors and servants in a luxurious Acapulco hotel. The last doctor who examined Hughes reported to the Mexican authorities that "it wasn't a matter of a fatal illness but a patient who had been neglected." The local medics "could have saved him," attested the doctor.

Our curiosity was aroused by the billionaire's mysterious midnight departure from Las Vegas on Thanksgiving Eve, 1970. We picked up whispers that there was something dreadfully wrong with Hughes. By Dec. 9, 1970, we were able to report that he was subject to long lapses, albeit with "flashes Of his old brilliance."

We also described him as "an emaciated invalid with white hair down to his shoulders, shaggy eyebrows, a straggly beard and grotesquely long fingernails and toenails."

This was a terrible secret which the Hughes empire labored mightily to dispel. Associates were produced to deny passionately that the world's richest man had degenerated into such a scraggly hermit. Findlly he appeared himself to a few selected visitors, who duly reported that Hughes was amiable and alert, his Van Dyke beard and nails in the best of taste. Yet we continued to hear that the real Hughes had become the phantom of the penthouse, with a wild, unkempt look. Last April, we persuaded the Mexican authorities to assist with our investigation. They arrived at his Acapulco penthouse too late to save him from his death flight to Huston but in time to expropriate his files, minus several documents that had already been shredded. Later, we made arrangements with the Mexican authorities to turn the files over to the U.S. Internal Revenue Service, which has been investigating the Hughes operation. At least these files have now cleared up the mystery of the disparate Howard Hugheses. Both the disheveled Hughes and the other with the Van Dyke beard were the same man. For his rare visits with outsiders, according to the files, Hughes submitted to a cosmetic overhaul.

It is also clear from the files that the secluded billionaire followed an erratic schedule, sometimes staying awake for two or three days and then collapsing, say, for 30 hours of sleep. He also began taking sedatives until the combined effect of the drugs and physical deterioration changed the sleep into a stupor.

The drugs began to worry his doctors, who sent him warning notes. They were careful not to identify the drugs, except as "the item" or "bombers." Hughes was advised in one note that the doctors wanted "your staff to be in the position" of knowing nothing about the drugs.

It was explained this would prevent any "possible testimony which we might sometime be required to give. With doctors, it is privileged information and they cannot be forced to testify unless it is in a criminal case."

The doctors warned Hughes on April 12, 1974, that "heavy usage of the item" had left him in no "condition, either physically or mentally in any 24-hour period to enjoy the day or make any business decisions. One day runs into the next without proper nutrition."

The following May 8, the doctors wrote that an aide had not taken Hughes' "bombers" away from him. "Of course," they wrote, "no one wants you to take any but we don't try to keep them away.

"When you use words and phrases such as 'putting you to sleep,' 'permitting you to go to sleep,' etc., you imply that we have sone kind of control over what you or your mind tells you to do.

"The fact re the bombs is that you slept more today without any than you did yesterday with six and that has happened many times in the past. You seem to delight in blaming us if you do not achieve the sleeping results you want which vary. Sometines you are happy with 10 and sometimes you are not happy with an overall 'down' period of 20 hours."

But County Thaw Is Peaceful

Frozen Main Plagues Phoenicia

KINGSTON — With its rivers thawing in relative peace, Ulster County's biggest weather problem is now the stuff under the ground, not above it.

Despite the warming trend, the hamlet of Phoenicia lost a major water main to subsurface frost Monday, and customers in the Phoenicia Water District were advised to boil their drinking water while an alternate line is being used for supplies.

In New Paltz, even though Libertyville and Springtown Roads are still plagued with ice from the nearby Wallkill River, the biggest highway problem is frost heaves, Highway Supt. Frank H. Donahue said.

"We're still not out of this winter yet because of the frost," Donahue said. "There's still a lot of water in the ground."

Weather forecasters were predicting a return to cooler weather today and tonight, with the possibility of snow flurries. However, the long-range forecast was for another warming trend near the end of the week.

The Esopus and Rondout Creeks, hit by heavy ice jams and flooding last year in February, are thawing in a fairly regular pattern this year, according to observers along both waterways.

There are some ice concentrations in the narrows of the Rondout near Eddyville, a perennial ice jam zone, "but there appears to be no danger to anybody at this time," said John L. Adsit, Ulster County Civil Defense director.

"If the weather stays fairly normal, the current water flow should eat away the ice floes safely," Adsit said.

Ice has stacked up in several places along the Wallkill. There were reports that one ice floe near Rifton was blasted by a dynamite crew Monday, but neither federal, state, county nor local officials could confirm the reports.

Although last week's rain loosened ice that was heavier than normal because of the severely cold winter, several days of relatively dry and warm weather have offset the flood potential, observers said.

Ice and melt in the upper Esopus are "going off fairly gently," Olive Town Clerk E. Lee Denman said. "It's funny, because back about a month ago, we were thinking just the opposite."

Puzzling over why frost seems to be driven deeper into the ground by a thaw, a county health official this morning gave notice of the Phoenicia freezeup, which has cut off the main line to community's water storage tank.

While no one can say the alternate water supply is contaminated, residents in the hamlet were advised to boil their drinking water "until further notice," the health official said.

Eddie Anderson Dies, Jack Benny's Rochester

WOODLAND HILLS, Calif. — Eddie Anderson, whose gravel-voiced irreverence as Jack Benny's chauffeur "Rochester" made him the first black to win a regular network radio role, died of a heart attack Monday at age 71.

Anderson died at the Motion Picture Home and Hospital, where he was admitted in December for a heart condition, hospital officials said.

"Rochester" was a fixture on the Benny radio and television series for 23 years, since he appeared in what was supposed to be a one-shot role on Easter Sunday, 1937.

For a show based on Benny's move from New York to Hollywood, the writers invented a brash Pullman car porter to bedevil Benny on the trip West. Anderson, a former vaudeville performer and bit part movie actor, got the role.

The audience response was so enthusiastic he was made a permanent part of the series, as Benny's all-purpose servant and general ego deflator.

For decades, the series drew laughs from Benny's frustrations with Rochester, the ancient Maxwell car he was supposed to tend, his drinking and social habits and general lack of awe about his employer.

Anderson, like Benny with his exasperated "Well!", could bring on a roar of laughter by the timing of a simple line, such as his trademark "What's that, boss?"

"I never played an Uncle Tom," Anderson said after a later generation of black performers criticized him for playing a servant. "The scripts always called for me to get the best of Mr. Benny. The fact I played a valet had nothing to do with it. Arthur Treacher played those roles and nobody ever criticized him for it."

Anderson said he owed his distinctive voice to a job hawking newspapers in San Francisco when he was 12. "We thought the loudest voice sold the most papers," he said. "I ruptured my vocal chords from straining them."

Eddie 'Rochester' Anderson

Anderson was born in Oakland to a show business family. His father, "Big Eddie" Anderson, was a vaudeville performer and his mother, Ella Mae, was a circus tightrope walker whose career was ended by a fall.

At 14, he joined an all-black revue, singing and dancing across the country for 10 years before he broke into the movies with such roles as Noah in "Green Pastures." He also played the Rochester character in a number of movies with Benny.

•AMIN

Amin's original demand for a meeting coincided with a cable he sent to President Carter Friday in which he accused the President of falsifying events in Uganda.

Carter told a news conference two weeks ago that recent disturbances in Uganda — particularly the mysterious death of Ugandan Archbishop Janani Luwum — "disgusted the civilized world."

On Sunday, Amin warned Ugandans to remain on alert for a possible "invasion" by U.S. Marines. There has been no further mention of the "invasion" plans.

•TOWER

himself in the esteem of project developer Martin Aaron, who says flatly that "it would never have happened in Kingston if it wasn't for Yosman. Those 100 units would have walked right by us."

The buildings namesake has been director of the Kingston Housing Authority for over 20 years and, says Aaron, is responsible for founding the county's senior citizens organizations and for maintaining superior conditions in the area's senior other senior citizens complexes.

"Most of the time we dont bother to honor someone for his work until after he's dead," says Aaron. "It thought it was time to recognize someone for his work while he's still living."

The red brick building at Broadway and Orchard Street is part of a federal rent subsidy program which allows its owners to offer low rents to elderly persons while the government makes up the difference.

"We seem to be having some problem communicating to senior citizens that the apartments are within their price range," says Aaron.

The federal fair market value on the units are $299 a month for the studios and $344 a month for the one-bedroom apartments.

But elderly persons shouldn't even consider these figures, according to Aaron, who says applicants are asked to pay only one-quarter of their yearly income and assets for rent.

Only those seniors earning less than $8,000 a year can be considered as tenants and the most needy persons will be given preference by Aaron, who is allowed to review the applications and make final decisions on tenants.

What this means is that an elderly person with an income of $200 a month and no other major assets like property or large amounts of cash savings, would be charged approximately $50 a month.

That rent includes heat, electricity, hot water and cable television.

Applications for the apartments, which will be open for occupancy on April 1, are now being taken at the Kingston Housing Authority office on Flatbush Avenue and at the Governor Clinton apartments, mornings between 8 and 10 a.m.

Aaron also points with some pride at the other "extra features" he has built into Yosman Tower to help "make the people who live here as proud of the building as we are."

Instead of the usual all-white interiors of most new buildings, the bedroom area is painted a soft gold tone. Baths are partially tiled in shiny blue porcelain and have special safety bar features to help older persons lift themselves.

Also built in to the units are two emergency help cords, one in the bath and the other in the bedroom, which seniors can pull if they need special assistance.

The cord alerts building personnel to an emergencies in the unit and unlocks the apartment door to allow help to get in.

One of the elevators at the project, which is built on the former site of St. Ann's Church, is also specially designed to allow an ambulance stretcher to fit in easily.

Earlier this year Aaron re-opened the Governor Clinton apartments as senior citizens residences under a similar rent-subsidy program.

Professor Is Top Impersonator

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — Prof. Richard Eakin wound up and hurled a handful of green peas at his University of California zoology class.

The class roared with laughter. So did Eakin, who is obviously no ordinary professor.

Donning costumes and stage makeup, Eakin impersonates great scientists like Charles Darwin and Louis Pasteur to give the students a learning experience they could not get from textbooks, lectures, and blackboard diagrams.

On Monday, Eakin, who has made a science out of combining showbiz and teaching, did his impersonation of Gregor Mendel, the Austrian monk known as the "father of genetics" — and who used green peas in his experiments.

Bubbling excitement generated in the crowd of students who lined up outside the amphitheater-shaped classroom, waiting to get in.

Soon the amphitheater was packed, and a young man announced: "We are honored today with the presence of Gregor Mendel."

Right on cue and to rousing applause, out strode Eakin from the wings, wearing a monk's cassock and hood and chomping on a cigar. The students laughed and applauded louder.

Eakin, 66, let the hood down and — looking down through rimless glasses with a benign, fatherly smile — began his lecture, using a slight German accent to fit his character.

Hands folded across his chest and standing behind a desk, he mixed hammed up dramatics and facts in an engaging manner — telling, as Mendel, how he once flunked an exam.

The pea-throwing incident occurred when, as Mendel, he recalled how some of his students fell asleep in class.

"In that case, I simply call on the Almighty to send me down a rain of peas," he said.

He then tossed the peas at students in the front, and the class convulsed in laughter, followed by more applause.

Ever the eccentric professor in image, Eakin, still in his role as Mendel, ended his lecture on a serious note, advocating the patience that was a trademark of the monk.

"Haste and anger rest only in the bosom of fools," he said. "May God bless you."

He turned and strode off as the class clapped enthusiastically for the professor, who is giving his final course in 40 years at the university.

Art Tribute

WASHINGTON (UPI) — When the government hired artist Jack Beal to paint four murals depicting the history of labor in America, he reinvented the work methods of the old masters of the Renaissance Age to get the job done.

Beal, 45, says he employed a team of artists — his wife, Sondra Freckleton Beal, and three former students, Dana Van Horen, Bob Treloar and William Eckert — to paint the four huge panels which will hang in the lobby of the $98 million Labor Department building on Constitutional Avenue.

Admissions Day At Coleman School

STONE RIDGE—Ulster County Community College will hold an Admissions Day at Coleman High School, Hurley Avenue, Kingston, Wednesday, March 2. Representing the college will be John Frampton who will interview Coleman seniors who have expressed an interest in attending UCCC starting next September. The Admission Day is a convenience to the students and parents. By interviewing these students and checking their records right at the school, Frampton will eliminate the need for them to visit the Stone Ridge campus for this purpose.

Laura Wilensky's popular porcelain spoons. They are carefully detailed from head-to-toe, including polished fingernails.

Ceramic Creatures with a practical purpose

By MARGERY MOSSMAN
Freeman staff

LOMONTVILLE—Dashing, mustachioed "Snakey Raoul" says, "I love you," but his intentions are evil. No Valentine, this guy. And wealthy, red-lipped Beatrice— should she say "no"? She faces Raoul across the porcelain tablecloth, nervously twisting her napkin in her lap. She can see this Casanova kisses only for fortunes.

Meanwhile, a reptile-faced fairytale princess in her gilt laden gown peers shyly out of her tower window, hands clasped to her chest. Pining below are two similarly reptile-faced suitors, both hoping for her happily-ever-after hand, a porcelain castle in the clouds.

And then there's the bald, long-faced teeny-bopper. Curlers on her head, kilted and knee-socked, she sits cross-legged on a porcelain ruffled bed, staring at models in "Seventeen" magazine. "I will be beautiful," she smiles to herself.

At the age of five, Laura Wilensky put pen to paper and drew a charming picture of two round-faced, grinning, long-legged figures surrounded by floating hearts. Across the top, she printed "I Love You" in a wobbly hand.

Today, 20 years later, Laura Wilensky is known for her reptile-faced, grinning, long-limbed porcelain ladies and gentlemen, who stretch out gracefully along spoon handles and bowl rims and stare seductively forever.

Others, like Raoul and Beatrice, pose permanently on miniature furniture, or, like the princess and her suitors, tell their story on four sides of a handbuilt "hope chest."

They are all Laura's stick figures grown up but still dreaming. And they are making their hard-working creator one of this area's most successful ceramicists.

Ms. Wilensky, who earned a degree in ceramics from SUNY at New Paltz, began developing her kooky characters while still a student. Her inspiration was, naturally enough, a five-year-old "craftsman" at a summer camp where she was working. The little boy made a cup with a human figure attached at the handle, and his teacher was impressed by the idea.

Her first experimental piece was a heavy mug with a slinky lady forming the handle. Ms. Wilensky admits the piece is "crude," but she keeps it lovingly on the window sill in the kitchen of her Lomontville home.

The art student continued developing her porcelain creatures, always setting them to some practical use as cup or spoon handles. Ms. Wilensky's spoons soon became a popular item, and today they continue to be her biggest sellers at Clouds in Woodstock; Handmade in New Paltz, and the Harriet Griffin Gallery on Madison Avenue in New York City, where the artist plans to hold a one-person show in October.

"No two of the spoons are exactly the same," says Ms. Wilensky. "Occasionally people ask me to make pairs or sets, but I get bored."

Even making spoons is beginning to bore the ceramicist after four years and almost 400 spoons. Although each spoon is original, Ms. Wilensky describes them as "semi-production items," because orders pour in constantly for them. "I hope to slow my pace down," says the artist, "and get back to doing larger pieces."

The "larger pieces" she speaks of are character pieces, like Raoul and Beatrice; her "hope chests," vertical decorated boxes with removable lids; and huge jars which picture another of Ms. Wilensky's favorite subjects—the imaginary life of rabbits.

She developed her bunnies-in-miniature while experimentally decorating jars and plates with porcelain-relief scenes of various cartoon-like animals. "I used to be much more well-rounded," jokes the artist, "but I got involved with three dimensional rabbit homes, and got stuck on rabbits." Of course, these are no ordinary long-earred, fluffy-tailed creatures. They hop above and below ground, cooking in red-gingham kitchens, or playing in their split-level "digs."

A one-person show is planned for October at the Harriet Griffin Gallery in New York City.

Ms. Wilensky instills her good sense of fun and irony in all her work, but she takes her profession seriously. Her friend Harry Cavanagh, a sculptor and ceramicist, describes her as "the toughest employer I've ever seen...and she's self-employed!" Ms. Wilensky works in her studio five days a week from 9 a.m. to 6 o'clock in the evening; or longer if she has a specific order to fill.

Working at such a pace, the young woman's style and techniques have developed and changed quickly. "My first pieces were much more bizarre," she says of her long-limbed, well-dressed "human" creatures. She started putting hair on their egg-shaped heads only a year ago as she began to explore new personalities. Considering this big step, Cavanagh points out, "Certainly your mermaids require it." Absolutely.

Ms. Wilensky also believes she has become more "conscious of realism." She refers to a collection of photographs for poses and clothing(when she is dealing with a specific time period), and uses herself as a model before permanently posing her limber-limbed females.

The ceramicist has even arrived at a unifying theme for her starry-eyed characters. "My work is about women and dreams," she explains, "...the ideal marriage every teenage girl hopes to have." Ms. Wilensky remembers very well her own thoughts and feelings as a young girl reading story after story of good-girl-meets-right-boy plots.

Looking over her ceramic pieces that dangle on walls and peek out of corners of the living room and kitchen, the soft-spoken artist admits, "They are my own fantasies from the past...or maybe from the present."

The artist displays the prophetic picture she drew at the age of five. The style and "I Love You" message haven't changed much!

A "lovely" princess peeks at her Prince Charming on this unique version of the traditional "hope chest."

A sparkling Diamond Jubilee is the effect Mrs. Richard B. Matthews, decorations chairman, and Mrs. Howard Whitaker are creating for the annual Benedictine Hospital Ball, Saturday, March 5, at Holiday Inn.

Tradition started in 1904

Benedictine Auxiliary's Diamond Jubilee Ball Set

KINGSTON—The Benedictine Hospital Auxiliary's Diamond Jubilee Ball which will be held Saturday, March 5, will be carrying on a tradition begun in 1904 with the auxiliary's first charity ball. Also known as the Easter Monday Ball, this annual event offered Kingston partygoers an evening of entertainment dancing amid colorful decorations at the Kingston municipal auditorium, where the balls were held until 1950.

Throughout the years, themes such as 1932's Rainbow Ball; 1949's Falling Roses; and 1958's Easter Parade carried out the traditional springtime motif. In the 1960's, themes as diverse as Oriental Evening, Roaring 20's, and Astro Ball were used.

At balls of 40 and 50 years ago, long and varied entertainment programs were a highlight. These featured operatic soloists, choral groups, dancers, musical playlets with costumes and stage settings.

This year's Diamond Jubilee Ball, sparked by glittering decorations, promises to be as festive an event as those of long ago. It will take place at the Holiday Inn with a social hour scheduled at 7:30 p.m. followed by dinner at 8:30; dancing from 9:30 to 1:30 to music by Dick Elliott Bertling and Katch-Up. The public is invited and reservations must be made by calling Mrs. Henry Bruck. No tickets will be sold at the door.

Proceeds will help fulfill the auxiliary's $200,000 pledge to the hospital building fund to help build a new mental health department in the hospital's new addition.

DEAR ABBY

Send Flowers to 'Break Silence'

DEAR ABBY: My Irish wife isn't speaking to me. Here's what happened: Her father, who lived to a ripe old age, was buried last week. I was a pallbearer. It was pouring down rain when we got to the cemetery, and we were all ankle-deep in mud.

There was some kind of mix-up on the hole they had dug, so after half the services were said at the wrong hole, we were advised of the mistake, and the funeral party had to walk a very long way to the right hole. What a mess! All the pallbearers took turns slipping and falling in the mud as we carried the casket, and the priest fell twice.

I held an umbrella over the priest's head as he started the prayers again, and I leaned over and whispered, "Father, let's have the short version."

My wife heard me and claims I was very disrespectful to her father. Also she thinks that because of me the priest left out a lot, and her father didn't have a proper funeral. How can I get my wife to start talking to me? SORRY IN BOSTON

DEAR SORRY: Send her some flowers. They're the best bloomin' silence-breaker known to man.

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I have a bet on, and we need you to settle it. Are you divorced, or aren't you? I say you are, and my wife says you aren't.

The loser has agreed to send $25 to a charity of your choice. Thank you.—MAC

DEAR MAC: You lose. I am NOT divorced, and God willing, come July I'll be married to the same wonderful man for 39 years. (P.S. Send your contribution to your local animal shelter.)

DEAR ABBY: CAROLINA CONTROVERSY says she is constantly being complimented on her clothes, which she makes herself, but her husband tells her she's foolish for telling people her clothes are "homemade."

How ridiculous! The well dressed man of today who can afford to have his clothes custom-tailored isn't ashamed to tell people that HIS suits are handmade. In fact he's proud of it. So why shouldn't a woman be proud to say that HER clothes are "handmade"?—MY TWO CENTS

DEAR MY: She SHOULD be. But "homemade" and "handmade" have an entirely different ring—on the cash register, that is. It's funny how most people want their clothes to look expensive, but don't like to spend a lot for them.

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teenagers Want to Know," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (24 cents) envelope.

Perry Banking on Depth in Region XV Tourney

STONE RIDGE — Ulster County Community College split its two Mid Hudson Conference games with first-round Region XV opponent Orange CCC this year, but the way a cautious UCCC coach Mike Perry looks at it, his team is down, 3-1.

"We've lost to Orange three of the four halves we played this year," Perry said as his Senators prepared for tonight's 8 p.m. playoff in the Senate Gym. "We beat them in the first half here, 38-19, but they won the second half, and they won each half down there by one point."

If you think Perry is trying to make the Colts sound tougher than they are, you're right. He doesn't want his team looking at any more than one game at a time. At this stage of things, the next loss is the last one.

But Perry doesn't have to hype this confrontation. Like most of the Region XV tournament's first round games, this will be a good one. That's one of the things that sets this year's tourney apart.

"Last year there were two outstanding teams, Westchester and Farmingdale," Perry said. "This year there's a lot more balance."

Westchester and Farmingdale are back in the field with the first and second seeds, respectively. Westchester, 29-2, will open with Sullivan, 12-13, in a game that shapes up like the only foregone conclusion in the tournament. Farmingdale, 23-3, will meet Kingsborough, 14-7, a squad which knocked off Westchester earlier in the campaign.

Rockland, 17-6, is at Staten Island, 17-7, in the other first round battle. That one is a real tossup.

The pot at stake is a trip to the NJCAA tournament in Hutchinson, Kansas, later this month. That's what the winner of Sunday's championship game at Orange will receive as the regional champion.

Despite Westchester's impressive credentials and position as defending champ, there are several teams with an equal chance of success. One of them is Ulster.

"This is probably our deepest team ever," Perry said. He's got a lot of evidence to back him up. Phil Blount, Corey Chambers, Steve Watts, Jeff Porter, Tony Gibson, Vic Williams, Ray Younger, Leon Ware, Jeff Johnson and Sandy Simmons have all had a big part in UCCC's 23-6 record to date. Conquering Orange is the first step, and to do that the Senators will have to stop two-thirds of the Colts' three-man attack.

Steve Lewis, Fred Williams and Steve Langbein are the main OCCC bombers. Newton Medder gets his share of rebounds, but the Colts don't have the bench to match Ulster's.

Langbein is an excellent outside shooter and is Orange's main weapon against a zone, but Perry feels, "We have to stop Lewis and Williams in particular. The story will be defense. We might slow things down a bit—they like to run."

The Senators are a decisive favorite for tonight, and their home court advantage won't help Orange any. That 3-1 argument Perry makes shrinks a little when the fact that the Orange triumph over Ulster came right on the heels of UCCC's emotional defeat to Westchester is considered.

Commenting on the whole tournament picture, Perry said, "Westchester has to be the favorite, but anybody in the tournament is capable of knocking them off.

Then he added, "I don't think Farmingdale is the secondbest team in the region. I think we are, and I think Staten Island and Rockland are as good as we are."

UCCC has just one doubtful performer for tonight, Porter, who pulled a tendon in his leg and sat out Ulster's win over Cobleskill Saturday.

Raceway Delays Opening

MONTICELLO—Monticello Raceway general manager Leo Doobin has requested the New York State Racing and Wagering Board to suspend indefinitely the opening of its 1977 season which had been scheduled for March 31.

The delay is a result of an impasse in negotiations for a new contract between the raceway and members of the Building Serivce Service Employees International Union, Local 32E, which includes personnel in the pari mutuel, admissions, parking and security areas.

The old contract expired on Dec. 31, 1976, Doobin repeated his earlier condition that the raceway would not open until 30 days after a contract settlement.

It was reported that the main stumbling block to the negotiations is a union demand that sellers and cashiers be paid $7 a day more in the new contract. Local 32E represents 325 employes at Monticello Raceway. It was also reported that union members voted to strike the track by March 30 if no agreement is reached by that time and also not to picket unless management attempts to bring in employees from outside the raceway union.

Doobin has been reported as claiming that the track is in no position to grant a wage increase and was quoted as citing a "decline in gross profits," saying they "dropped $650,000 from last year and we're in no position to give increases when business is going the other way."

$3 Million for .238 Hitter?

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. —Too bad Rogers Hornsby isn't still around to comment on Dave Kingman's contract negotiations with the New York Mets.

Remember Horsnby, the churlish Hall of Famer with the .358 lifetime batting average, who was asked to comment in 1962 on Roger Maris' feat of breaking Babe Ruth's home run record by hitting 61?

"Just a .269 hitter, who couldn't carry my bat," said Hornsby.

The old guy could surely top that one if he were around today because Kingman, a .238-hitter with 37 homers last season, is believed to be demanding $3-million. That's right, $3-million, with $1-million up front as a bonus and the rest spread over five or six years.

Such a contract would make Kingman the highest-paid .238-hitter in baseball history and teammate Tom Seaver the lowest paid (a mere $225,000 a year) three-time Cy Young Award winner in history.

Kingman met with General Manager Joe McDonald Monday and came away unsigned. He then granted a rare interview to the New York press corps which helped to build him into a star.

"I hope to hit 50 home runs this year," he told newsmen. "I think I am capable of that."

Kingman said he has every desire to play for the Mets but didn't rule out the possibility of playing out his option.

"I was raised in California," he said, "and eventually I would like to go back there. I am single and have no ties. There is nothing to prevent me from picking up and going."

Stage Is Set for Court Decision

CHICAGO (UPI) — The stage has been set for a final decision on Oakland A's owner Charles O. Finley's $3.5 million damage against Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

Post-trial briefs and proposed findings of fact were filed by Finley and Kuhn Monday in U.S. District Court.

Testimony in the suit, in which Finley charged that Kuhn exceeded his authority in voiding the sales of three Oakland superstars, ended in mid-January. Judge Frank J. McGarr, ordering both sides to file final papers by Monday, said his decision would be forthcoming "as soon as possible."

Kuhn's brief, running 137 legal pages, summarized evidence produced on his behalf at the trial and requested "judgment for the defendant, dismissing the complaint with prejudice and awarding appropriate fees and costs to the defendant."

Finley had asked that Kuhn be required to pay Finley's legal costs in the suit.

The proposed conclusions for Kuhn summarized the legal issues of the trial and asked that Finley's complaint be "barred and judgment entered for defendant Kuhn."

The suit was filed because Kuhn voided Finley's sale of outfielder Joe Rudi and pitchers Rollie Fingers and Vida Blue to the Boston Red Sox and New York Yankees for a combined $3.5 million. Finley charged the commissioner's action was "capricious and arbitrary."

Conclusions of law submitted by Finley specified that he had been damaged $2 million by Kuhn and asked for that amount plus interest from June 18, 1976 to the date of decree. The amount requested was reduced presumably because Finley retained contract rights to Blue, while he lost rights to Rudi and Fingers, who played out their options and signed with other teams as free agents.

Witnesses for Kuhn during the trial testified that owners had granted unlimited authority to the commissioner since the office of commissioner was established and that Kuhn's action, which he took "in the best interests of baseball," was within his power.

Finley challenged Kuhn's authority to void the sale under the clause of "best interests of baseball."

Both briefs filed on behalf of Kuhn Monday covered every point brought up during the trial as well as citing previous legal actions which might be applicable to the case.

Kuhn's brief cited some contradictions in testimony by Finley concerning his negotiations to sign a contract with Blue and the possible sale of Blue to the Detroit Tigers.

Finley's findings declared that Kuhn had established a new rule on his right of disapproval of player assignments, a matter which previously received "perfunctory approval."

Kuhn's conduct in ruling in the "best interests of baseball," if not checked or narrowed, could "permit him to punish his enemies and reward his friends," Finley's brief alleged.

Kentucky, Tennessee Are Ready

By UPI

Second-ranked Kentucky, after being saved by the whistle against Mississippi State Monday night, now is ready to settle the Southeastern Conference championship with Tennessee.

Freshman center Ricky Brown fouled out with 6:34 left in the game at Lexington and Mississippi State suddenly saw a one-point lead turn into an 11-point deficit.

"We played extremely good defense, and we were doing a lot of things right," Davis said after the Bulldogs dropped a 77-64 decision. "But when we lost Brown and (Ray) White to fouls, we went from one up to 11 down in a hurry, and we couldn't recover."

Brown was the Bulldogs' top scorer with 17 points, but even his continued presence might not have been enough to hold off the Wildcats, who sank 83 per cent of their shots in the second half.

"We really didn't shoot that well did we?" asked Kentucky coach Joe Hall. "We were certainly flat in the first half, but our defense held up."

The Wildcats connected on 15 of 18 shots in the second half for their 14th straight victory. It raised their record to 23-2 overall and 15-1 in the SEC, where they hold a one-game lead over Tennessee. The Wildcats travel to Knoxville for a game with the Vols Saturday and also have a game left at Georgia.

Rick Robey led the Wildcats with 19 points. The junior center suffered an injury to his left heel on the final play of the game, but Robey dismissed it as minor.

"I'll be ready for Tennessee," he vowed.

Kentucky can assure itself a berth in the NCAA tournament with a victory over the Vols.

Larry Johnson, playing his last regular season game at home, scored 13 points for the Wildcats, while reserve

Maruk Blackens Blues

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Emile Francis calls Dennis Maruk "a pain in the neck," and Maruk will remember Francis's St. Louis Blues as a pain in the lip.

Francis, Blues coach, offered his appraisal of Maruk after Cleveland's leading scorer tallied a goal and an assist and led a flying ice attack to bring the Barons out of their seven-game winless streak with a 5-2 victory Monday night.

"Every pass they made had eyes in the puck," said Francis. "They didn't give us a chance to get organized in front of our net."

But Maruk has less technical and more poignant memories of the game. In the third period, he was on the bleeding end of Bob Gassoff's stick blade and suffered a stinging cut on the inside of his lip.

While Maruk was getting five stitches in his mouth after the game, some of his less sympathetic teammates joked that Maruk's blood was sufficient to put Gassoff in the penalty box for five minutes instead of the usual two.

But the Barons, who already led 5-1, didn't score on that long power play. Gilles Meloche stopped 15 of 17 St. Louis shots in the final period and gave up the only goals to Red Berenson and Ted Irvine.

Martin On Sidelines

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) — The New York Yankees suffered their first spring training casualty Monday and it turned out to be the manager, Billy Martin.

Martin showed up with a virus and a temperature of 104 and was sent home by trainer Gene Monahan. In his absence, the workout was run by coach Yogi Berra, who when asked what kind of workout he had conducted, replied: "A short one. We had only eight pitchers and when they were finished throwing, we called it quits."

Who is Bucky Dent and why do the Yankees want him? See Sidelines, page 11.

The full squad is to be in uniform Tuesday, which will also mark the first appearance of Reggie Jackson in a New York uniform.

Yankee president Gabe Paul met with agent Ed Keating during Monday's workout. Keating represents first baseman Chris Chambliss, one of nine unsigned Yankees, but no agreement was reached.

CLEARWATER, Fla. (UPI) — Mike Schmidt, the Philadelphia Phillies' third baseman who has led the major leagues in home runs the last three years, plans to sign a multi-year contract today or Wednesday.

Phillies' Player Personnel Director Paul Owens said today only minor details remained to be worked out before the signing takes place.

Schmidt's agent, Dave Lanfield, arrived here from Los Angeles Monday night and planned to meet today with Owens.

Besides Schmidt, there were 11 unsigned Phillies as the team began its first full squad spring training workout Monday.

Newcomers Ted Sizemore, Richie Hebner and Dave Johnson were among the 44 players who took part in the drill.

Braves Seek Injunction

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — The Atlanta Braves will attempt to block owner Ted Turner's one-year suspension and loss of the first-round choice in the June free-agent draft by seeking a court injunction against Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, it was announced Monday.

The Braves' board of directors opted for the last resort at a meeting last Friday. Turner was not present, a spokesman said.

In a telegram to the commissioner's legal counsel, the board said it found Kuhn's charges against Turner "totally unfounded" and would seek "appropriate redress" through legal channels.

Kuhn suspended Turner for one year and removed the Braves' draft choice Dec. 30, 1976.

The commissioner ordered the action because of statements the flamboyant Turner made to San Franciso Giants owner Bob Lurie in New York on Oct. 20 in connection with his plans for signing Giants outfielder Gary Matthews as a free agent.

Lurie complained to Kuhn that Turner told him, "You have really made me mad and I'll do everything I can to sign Matthews. I'll go as high as I have to."

Who Is Bucky Dent, and Why Do Yanks Want Him?

SPORT PARADE

Milton Richman,
UPI Sports Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — The team which holds the contract of the most famous athlete in the world today, and the highest paid and most idolized as well, would give anything to get him to sign another one, but Edson Arantes do Nascimento, known to all his friends as Pele, says no.

This time it looks as if he means it, too, although he did retire once before and was only coaxed into playing again because people at Warner Communications, Inc., the company which owns the New York Cosmos, came to him and convinced him he probably was the only man on earth with any chance of helping soccer to become established in the United States.

Along with all this fascinating information, they also brought along another not altogether unimportant ingredient, money, and you could say that also had something to do with Pele's coming out of retirement.

Back in October of 1974, Pele felt he had played enough soccer. He was 34, he had enough money to last him the rest of his life and he announced he was retiring. He was given a memorable ovation at the Vila Belmiro Stadium in Santos, Brazil, and everybody was pretty much convinced this was the end.

Along came an offer, however, which Pele said amounted to "the sky, the earth and the stars," and he wasn't far off.

The first proposition the Cosmos put to Pele was a three-year contract for $4.5 million but he didn't go for that one.

"It's not worth it," he said. "I consulted a tax specialist and he told me that after I finished paying my taxes in the United States and Brazil, I would be left with somewhere between $1.2 million and $500,000."

Pele was so important to the Cosmos, to the North American Soccer League they were in, and to soccer generally in the U.S., that they decided to sweeten the pot with several huge lumps of sugar. They told Pele they would give him $4.75 million and also would pay his taxes, which could come to as much as another $2.25 million.

Now that was "the sky, the earth and the stars" Pele was talking about, and for that, he not only came to this country but exceeded all expectations the Cosmos ever had for him in the two years he has played with them.

Even at 36, Pele still performed so superbly last season that he was named the league's Most Valuable Player. He scored 26 goals in 22 regular season games and set a league record with 18 assists. Pele now has 1,258 goals in the 1,321 games he has played during his 22-year career and this coming season, he says, absolutely will be his last.

Those closest to him say he means it and nothing will change his mind again this time, money, blandishments or anything else. Soccer is a good part of Pele's life, but three things mean more to him and they are his wife, Rosemary, and his two children.

Pele's greatest appeal probably lies in his utter naturalness, on or off the soccer field, and his patience and understanding qualify as close seconds.

He and Jim Trecker, the Cosmos' PR director, made a tour last year that took them to such cities as San Diego, Portland, Minneapolis, Chicago, Cleveland, Boston, Miami and Tampa, to name only a few, and it was only natural that some of the same questions came up over and over again. No matter how often he'd be asked the same thing, though, Pele never once gave a short answer.

"How much longer do you intend to play?" was the question asked most.

"I will play for one more year," he always answered. "It is better to retire when the people still ask you to stay then when they want you to get out."

"What has been your biggest thrill?"

"To meet the Pope, Queen Elizabeth and Presidents is different from seeing your first child born."

"What's the difference between soccer in Brazil and America?"

"You have to remember we have been playing soccer for many years, and in America it's only really starting."

At one of these question-and-answer sessions, somebody, possibly trying to test Pele, asked him about a practice which creates more attention here in the U.S. than in Brazil. How come that he, a black man, chose to marry a white woman, was the question. One of the hosts at the session tried to pass over the query and get on to the next one, but Pele said he'd be glad to answer the question.

"Rosie is a Brazilian," he said, "and I am Brazilian, too."

Just who is this shortstop Bucky Dent that the Yankees are supposed to be trying to obtain from theChicago White Sox? Does he endorse toothpaste? Is he a rookie? Why have so few baseball fans heard of him?

Dent, soon to enter his fourth full major league season, is one of the sport's best-kept secrets. The 25-year-old Georgia native is considered one of the finest fielding shortstops in the game and the Yankees recently offered a package of Ken Holtzman, Oscar Gamble, Fred Stanley and Ron Blomberg for Dent . Chicago White Sox owner Bill Veeck refused the offer. The Yankees then reportedly offered $400,000 in cold cash, but Veeck nixed that, too.

"I've always dreamed of playing for the Yankees, ever since I was a kid," said Dent from his spring training home in Sarasota, Fla. where camp opened today. "I definitely want to play with the Yankees if I ever leave the White Sox."

I am bending a personal journalistic rule in writing about Dent, my rule that says not to write about friends. I have been fortunate to know Dent for several years and he is one of the most personable major leaguers I met during my Florida days.

There's no doubt he would plug the Yankees' one major weakness, shortstop. Dent has played 154, 157 and 158 games in his three full seasons in Chicago, batting .274, .265 and .246. He also spent 40 games with Chicago in 1973 over the final two and one-half months of the season, batting .248, best of any shortstop on the squad.

The turnover on the White Sox has been so rapid that only Dent, pitchers Wilbur Wood and Bart Johnson, catcher Brian Downing and infielder-outfielder Jorge Orta remain from Dent's first season. He would love to leave the last-place doldrums of Chicago for the pennant potential of New York.

"I just hear the same old rumors about my getting traded," he said. "The Yankees are still after me, thbut the White Sox want so much. I think they're going to see if they can sign me, and if not, then they'll make the deal."

Dent is represented by Nick Buoniconti, the former linebacker for the Miami Dolphins who is now a practicing attorney in Miami. The length of Dent's contract is no problem—both sides agree on three years. The difference in opinion is over money, of course.

"I don't want to hold the team up, I know what their situation is," said Dent. "I just want to get paid what the other shortstops around the league are getting paid.

"I can't believe Chicago didn't make the four for one deal. The White Sox need players and the Yankees need only a shortstop. You know what I think it is? I think the White Sox can't afford four more salaries, especially Holtzman's. But when the money was supposedly offered, Veeck said that the club didn't need money.

"It's really baffling, to tell you the truth. The White Sox may be trying to squeeze the Yankees for all they can get...If they're going to trade me, I wish they'd trade me now, not in the middle of spring training or just before the season opens."

The Yankees have also been interested in Toby Harrah of the Texas Rangers and Chris Speier of the San Francisco Giants. It is safe to say that Harrah is a Texas untouchable. And Dent feels that San Fran won't part with Speier.

"Veeck might be reluctant to trade me for another reason," noted Dent. "When the Cubs traded Bill Madlock, the fans got really upset. Not to pat myself on the back or anything, but I'm one of the few guys on the team that the fans in Chicago can relate to. I live there in theoff-season, make it a point to get out and meet people and go to banquets. If I was traded, Veeck may feel he'll get a lot of static."

This week, Buoniconti will make a final offer to the White Sox. If he feels that the White Sox are not negotiating in good faith, or if they don't accept the offer, he'll recommend to Dent that he play out his option and go the free agent route at the end of the 1977 season.

If Chicago finds it can't sign Dent, it may finally trade him and get some value. Veeck would be ill-advised not to make a deal. Otherwise, he'll get nothing if Dent plays out his option and goes to the highest bidder next season.

"I also have to ask myself," said Dent, "do I want to spend three more miserable seasons with this team? We were the worst team in the league last year, and unless he's got some young pheenoms in the minors, I just don't see us getting much better. I've proved my value. But some guys didn't care about the team last year because we were going so bad.

"I think I can play for (Yankees manager) Billy Martin. He likes to bunt, to run, to hustle. I feel I can play that kind of game."

Dent was an all-state football player and Player of the Year in baseball for Hialeah High, Fla. He spent one year at Miami-Dade North Community College, achieving All-America status in baseball before signing with Chicago in 1970. His minor league itinerary included stops in Sarasota, Appleton, Knoxville and Iowa of the American Association.

A trade to the Yankees would be the second great event to happen to Dent in the space of one month. He and his family stopped in his native Savannah, Ga. while driving to Sarasota recently.

For the first time in his life, Dent, a product of a broken home, met his father.

"It was a good feeling, a thrill for me," Dent said. "He knew all about me but hadn't known how to get in touch with me."

E. German Captures Figures

TOKYO (UPI) — European champion Anett Poetzsch of East Germany won the ladies compulsory figure event today in the world figure skating championships.

Poetzsch showed masterful control in performing three difficult figures for a total of 17.5 ordinals and 45.56 points.

Second was West Germany's Dagmar Lurz, runnerup in the European championships, with 19.5-45.08, and third place went to Susanna Driano of Italy with 36.5-43.88.

Driano won the third spot because a larger number of the nine judges placed her higher in the event, although U.S. champion Linda Fratianne had better ordinals and points.

Fratianne came in fourth with 28.5-44.44.

A total of 21 women participated in the exacting event at Yoyogi national stadium which opened the five-day world championships.

The compulsory figures count for 30 per cent of the final score in the ladies figure skating event.

The ladies short program is scheduled for Wednesday to be followed by free skating on Thursday.

U.S. runner-up Barbie Smith was in fifth place in the figures with East Germany's Marion Weber sixth and another American, Wendy Burge, seventh. Four-time Canadian champion Nightingale was eighth.

The competitors completed three figures—a rocker, a paragraph bracket, and a paragraph loop—on the black-colored ice of Yoyigi's artificial rink.

"I didn't like the black surface because although the marks showed up very clear the ice cleaning machine could not completely obliterate the marks of the previous skaters," Frantianne said after the competition.

The only other event scheduled for today was the pairs short program beginning at 5:30 a.m. EST. Favored to win are four-time world champion Irina Rodnina and Aleksandr Zaitcez of the Soviet Union. Other strong contenders are U.S. champions Tai Babilonia and Randy Gardner

KHS Girls Stop Coleman

KINGSTON—Kingston High School's girls varsity basketball team, which has now held its last five opponents to an average of 28.6 points per game, Monday tuned for this week's Section One tournament game with a convincing 66-35 non-league victory over city rival Coleman.

The Tigers, 14-1, jumped out to a 21-6 lead after the first quarter and went ahead, 40-15, at the half. "Our defense has been superb," said KHS coach Pat Burke. "Coleman shot three for 15 in the first quarter. They just weren't getting the ball in. They have good outside shooters but they had hands in their faces when they went to shoot. Coleman also got into foul trouble when our kids drove to the baseline."

Ertha Burris led four double figure scorers for KHS with her 16 points. Julie Chavis added 12 points and nine rebounds, Theresa Thomas had 11 points and six rebounds, Lori Eaton 11 points and nine rebounds, and Lynette Byrd led in assists and steals with four each. Kathy Turck paced Coleman with 13 points and Kathy Mahoney, saddled with four fouls for half the contest, added eight points.

KHS will host its first Section One game Friday at 5:30 p.m. at the Kate Walton Field House when it meets the winner of today's Mt. Vernon vs. Mamaroneck game.

Barnes Sees Specialist

DETROIT (UPI) — Forward Marvin Barnes is suffering from retinal homorrhaging and is scheduled to see a specialist Tuesday to determine the extent of the injury suffered when New York Nets forward Mike Bantom punched him in the eye.

Bantom and Barnes were jostling one another during last Friday night's game. Barnes elbowed the Nets' forward and received a blow to the eye in return.

He was taken to a hospital in New York, where butterfly stitches were required to close the wound.

A Detroit opthalmologist found blood on the inside covering of Barnes' eyeball Monday and referred him to a retinal specialist to determine the extent of the damage and a course of treatment.

Center Bob Lanier is suffering from a bad back and will not play Tuesday night against the Denver Nuggets, while guard Eric Money and Lanier's chief replacement, rookie Leon Douglas, both have sprained ankles.

State Volleyball Team Posting 4-7 Record

NEW PALTZ — The New Paltz State volleyball squad had its first home action of the season last weekend, and the Hawks wound up splitting four matches to run their record to 4-7.

New Paltz beat Maritime, 15-5 and 15-7, and dumped the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy in four sets, 10-15, 15-6, 15-8 and 15-10. Yale and the New Jersey Institute of Technology bested the locals, however, the Eli scoring 15-3, 15-8 and 15-10, and NJIT taking 15-10 and 15-12 decisions.

New Paltz coach Bill Odeneal was without the services of top spiker Dave Clifford and Cliff Jacobsen, but he reported standout efforts from rookie Ron Revis and Pat Clifford.

The Hawks had all their previous battles on the road. They opened with a double setback to host Yale and the University of Rhode Island. They then headed north to beat Union but lost two more to Albany State and Springfield. New Paltz dropped a return battle at URI but knocked off the Merchant Marines there for their second triumph of the year.

Surprise Winner At Aqueduct

NEW YORK (UPI)—Rest the Quadrant, the Restless Native gelding, gained his third victory in four starts this year with a surpising triumph Monday in the $25,000 allowance feature race at Aqueduct.

Vince Bracciale moved the four-year-old to the head of the five-horse field early and pulled away to upset favored Gabe Benzur and Bearer Bond by four and a half lengths.

Rest the Quadrant, who finished second in his only other race this year, completed the six furlong course for four-year-olds an up in 1:10 1-5, paying $5.40, $2.80 and $2.20. Steve Cauthen rode Gabe Benzur ($2.80 and $2.10) to second place and Wolf Ruler ($2.20) was third. Bearer Bond was fourth.

Cauthen, the record-setting 16-year-old apprentice, had an off-day with only one winner, his 125th in 48 days of racing at Aqueduct this season.

In the feature at Garden State, longshot Venetian Jam ($11.20) won a $9,500 allowance for fillies and mares four-years-old and up.

At Gulfstream, Rob the Cradle, another longshot, captured an $8,000 allowance for fillies and mares four-years-old and up and paid $24.40, $9.20 and $4.60.

Silklady ($6.60) took a $7,500 allowance for three-year-old fillies in the feature at Bowie.

Gaming Strike Is Averted

TOWSON, Md. (UPI) — A strike that threatened legalized gambling in several states has been averted because representatives of the American Totalisator Co. and union officials have agreed to keep negotiating until March 10.

Don Brodsky, a federal mediator, said Monday the planned midnight strike against American Tote was postponed for at least 10 days as negotiations continued.

A spokesman for Local 1501 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers said union representatives agreed to go along with Brodsky's recommendation that negotiations continue.

Protective Law Took Effect Monday

Coast Guard Patrols 200-mile Fishing Zones

By UPI

The United States expanded its territorial fishing zone to 200 miles today and Coast Guard vessels concentrated their patrols on the rich fishing fields south of Cape Cod in the Atlantic Ocean and off Kodiak, Alaska in the Pacific.

The new law protecting the fishing industry against foreign competition took effect at midnight Monday. Poachers illegally fishing U.S. waters or taking the wrong kind of fish can be seized.

Foreign ships need permits to fish within 200 miles of the U.S. coast. Some areas are off-limits altogether and some varieties of fish are banned in zones left open.

The Coast Guard said it did not know how difficult enforcement will be, but foreign ships will be boarded from time to time to "see what they're doing."

In New York, Coast Guard Lt. Kent Fisher said the "proof of the pudding" will come in the first 30 days.

"We have to get an idea of who's still around and who's licensed," He said five cutters patroled Atlantic coast fishing fields normally handled by three under the old 12-mile limit and a total of 11 were in operation on all U.S. coasts.

He said it was uncertain whether enforcement would be further increased. "It's just hard to tell at this stage what's going to happen," he said.

Some Coast Guard officials have said they planned to go slowly at first, allowing foreigners time to adjust. But Fisher said "We've been warning them for the last month."

Atlantic patrols concentrated on an area south of Cape Cod to Norfolk, Va., where foreign ships can take only hake and squid. In the Pacific, the main effort was off Kodiak, Alaska, where foreigners can only take hake and mackerel.

"Those are the areas that are active and economically profitable to fish at this time," the Coast Guard said.

As of Monday 122 foreign ships — all Japanese and Russian — were off Alaska and 119 ships of 13 nations were in the Atlantic. The Soviet Union indicated it will cooperate with the law and Russian ships that did not apply fot permits will leave the Pacific area.

Congress has 60 days to review agreements allowing other nations to fish within the zone. Such agreements have been signed with Poland, Bulgaria, Romania, East Germany, Taiwan and the Soviet Union.

A House subcommittee agreed Monday to waive a review for South Korea, Spain, Japan and the European Economic Community. Full committee action was scheduled today and officials hoped for final approval from Congress this week.

A Buckskin Wedding

Buckskinner William Bonewitz lifts his new bride Sharon over a snowcovered rail fence as they leave the log chapel at Lincoln's New Salem Park, Ill., following their traditional frontier wedding. The couple were among those who devote their free time to preserving a portion of American history during the era of the "mountain men." Sharon made her buckskin trousseau and Bill presented her with a bearskin.

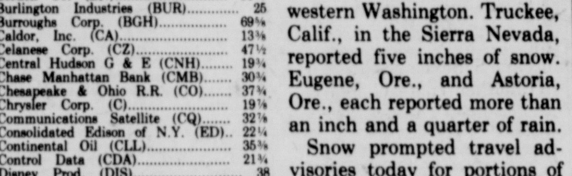
COMING "ROCKY"



Rains Ease Drought In Pacific Northwest

(By UPI)

Welcome rains eased drought conditions in the Pacific Northwest today and snow finally came to the snow-starved slopes of the Rockies, though it was too late to salvage the season for hard-hit ski resorts.

Drought hung on in the nation's midlands, threatening crops and livestock herds.

A Pacific storm roamed from Washington to northern California and eastward into western Nevada, northern Idaho and Montana, bringing rain and snow.

Up to eight inches of snow hit the Cascade Mountains of western Washington. Truckee, Calif., in the Sierra Nevada, reported five inches of snow. Eugene, Ore., and Astoria, Ore., each reported more than an inch and a quarter of rain.

Snow prompted travel advisories today for portions of Washington, Oregon, California, Nevada and Idaho. Strong winds triggered travel advisories in the mountains and deserts of Southern California.

Heavy snow warnings were posted for the mountains and foothills of western Montana and winter storm watches for portions of northern Arizona and the Colorado mountains.

Frost and freeze warnings were posted for northern Florida.

The National Weather Service discontinued a flash flood watch for seven counties in western New York, where temperatures dropped to near freezing Monday after record highs Sunday. Weather forecasters said colder temperatures slowed melting of ice and snow but warned of possible flood problems when thawing resumes.

Last week's snowfall improved skiing in Colorado's Rockies and bought some skiers back to the slopes. More snow was forecast today but ski resort manager John Rohm at Breckenridge said financial losses suffered earlier in the season cannot be reversed.

Dought plagued the Midwest.

Minnesota Gov. Rudy Perpich, in Washington for the National Governors' Conference, asked President Carter and Secretary of Agriculture Robert Bergland to arrange immediate aid to drought-stricken farmers in the Midwest.

Wisconsin Gov. Patrick J. Lucey reported Monday that even if the state gets normal rainfall this spring, its agricultural losses this year could total $1.5 billion.

"Assuming another dry year approaching 1976 with crop losses as great or greater than 1976, the resulting agribusiness losses would then between $2.5 billion and $3 billion for Wisconsin," Lucey said in a report presented to an assistant to Carter.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 2

Your birthday today: Where you head in the right directions this year, cooperation is so swift and easy you come to take it for granted. Relationships require clear demonstration now to survive changing conditions in years ahead. Today's natives supply much of the muscle for great group and national achievements without becoming very famous individually. Those born this year have creative talents, a sense of drama. All have a wholesome gift for humor, whimsy.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Take initiative where an old deadlock or limitation gives way with the help of recent news. Be alert: competition comes from those who aren't usually rivals.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Ask favors if really needed; mentally note how you'll redeem them. Put in for a raise if you earned it. Ideas are good but incomplete, require more work.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Tempo, direction of life are shifting rapidly. Clear all areas to make room for breathing space, improvements. However short of time, meditation is essential.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Revise financial arrangements, reserve an extra benefit for yourself. Pleasant surfaces, good grooming bolster your public image, people's faith in you.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Energy, persuasive ability are at peak; use them with deliberate purpose to attract backing. Timing is of the essence: today's opportunity passes swiftly.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Anything done now has lasting results. Move with confidence. Speculative investments, if well researched, are favored if you can ride out the span of a cycle.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Don't wait for help from people operating at higher levels of authority or income. Be sure original thinking is on record before you tell it to casual friends.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Plan in terms of continuity, speeding up, intensifying what is already happening. Don't experiment with unverified methods. Expect reversals of trends.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Reorganize diverse or scattered jobs into a more coherent program. Drop unfeasible sidelines. Fatigue is a warning to let up on active hobbies, sports.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): The simpler your approach the more chance of hitting pay dirt. Brief missions to unfamiliar places offer new contacts. Demonstrate or explain your work.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Get busy! Don't sit still because you're at low ebb in your energy cycle. Seek endorsement. Keep your story succinct, main points in current context.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Prospects improve in direct proportion to what you do about them. Wisecracks, practical jokes are out. Do all you can to encourage everybody's milder mood.

TEEN FORUM

By JEAN ADAMS, Ph.D.

By JEAN ADAMS, Ph.D.

SCHOOL NIGHTS: (Q.) My parents are very respectable and quite normal, but they think I should stay home on school nights and study.

I don't understand it. I rarely have any homework. I do well in my studies and missed the honor roll by only one mark.

All my friends go out on school nights and when they call me, I feel embarrassed and have to make up some stupid excuse. Every time I ask my parents about this, they say I need school nights for studying and getting rest. Or they say, "Because I said so."

I can take care of myself and I stay out of trouble. I am 15 and a boy. — No Freedom in Connecticut.

(A.) You have a point, but so do your parents. An occasional night out during the week should not be completely forbidden, if you have all your homework done and if you get in at an early hour. But there is more to learning, and good grades, than studying. Your mind works better when it is rested and when it is able to concentrate on class work.

A boy or girl who has been out late concentrating on entertainment will most likely not be in the best condition for learning the next day. Your parents know this fron experience.

Keep these points in mind as you discuss nights out with them.

WAITING: (Q.) I've liked this guy Charles for over a year now and I finally asked him to a dance where the girl does the asking. I had a lot of fun and he said he did too. I have not heard from him since the dance (three days ago).

I am dying to go back out with him. What should I do? —Anxious in Oklahoma.

(A.) Take it easy. Three days is not much time. If you don't hear from Charles in two weeks, either give him a call or write him a note to let him know you enjoyed being with him.

After that, let him do any further contacting — —if he's interested.

(Have a problem? Write to Dr. Jean Adams, care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 2402, Houston, Texas, 77001. Every letter is read, but because of the great number received, Dr. Adams cannot send personal replies.)

SHEINWOLD ON BRIDGE

SIMPLE THINKING HELPS DEFENDERS

by Alfred Sheinwold

Most bridge players think one-quarter of the time, as declarer. Now, there's some excuse for taking a rest when you're dummy, but it's pretty silly to put your brains on ice when you're defending.

Opening lead — ◇ J

South took the king of diamonds and then let the ten of hearts ride around to the queen.

East looked at dummy, and you could practically hear him saying to himself: Lead up to weakness." Dummy's weakness was spades, so East returned the three of spades. Understandable, but not particularly brainy.

South took the ace of spades and knocked out the ace of trumps. South easily regained the lead and drew the last trump, losing only two trumps and one club.

CARD READING

Simple card reading should defeat the contract. The finesse with the ten of hearts made it easy for East to see that his partner had the ace of trumps.

East could not hope to find another high card in his partner's hand. Still, the ace of trumps was enough.

East should cash the ace of clubs and lead his other club at once. West gets in with the ace of hearts and leads a third club, whereupon East's ruff defeats the contract.

East didn't have to be a genius to defeat the game. He just had to be willing to use his head.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer, you hold: ♠10972 ♡KJ3 ◇Q5 ♣KQJ9. What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass. Your 12 points in high cards are almost, but not quite, worth an opening bid. Don't strain to open an aceless hand

Proclaims Eye Donor Month

Sabino Gives Eyes

TOWN OF ULSTER — Supervisor Carmine Sabino and his secretary, Maureen Van Etten, have willed their eyes to the eye donor program sponsored by the Town of Ulster Lions Club.

Along with this personal gesture of support for the program of posthumous eye transplants, Sabino has signed a proclamation designating March as Eye Donor Month in the town, bringing it into line with Governor Hugh L. Carey's proclamation of March as Eye Donor Month in New York State.

Roger McClurg, Town of Ulster Lions sight chairman, complimented the two for joining the program, which has restored sight for many persons through coroneal transplants from deceased donors. The local Lions Club is affiliated with the Sight Conservation Society of Northeastern New York Inc.

"The success of the eye bank program is dependent on eye donors," McClurg said in urging area residents to get in touch with a member of their local Lions Club for details.

McClurg noted that once blindness was permanent and the blind lived in darkness. Recently great strides have been made by medical science in the treatment of eye diseases and in transplanting donor eye tissue.

"Through these developments, many who believed they would never see again have regained their sight," he said.

Hurley Plans to March Again This Year

By MARIANNE DARROW
Correspondent

HURLEY — The Town of Hurley Bicentennial Commission, far from being inactive after the Bicentennial year, is now planning a special celebration featuring another "Walk from Kingston" on Oct. 16, 1977, even larger than the one held in 1976.

Chairman John R. Warren said the burning of Kingston and the subsequent move to Hurley occurred in 1777, so that Hurley is gearing up to join Kingston in the special celebrations this year.

Dorothy Alling, who organized the walk and exhibits and special ceremonies last October, was given special appreciation for her efforts on behalf of the town. Since Mrs. Alling and her family are leaving the area, no one will be representing the West Hurley area on the commission unless new members from there join the organization. Members from the West Hurley-Glenford area are now being sought.

The commission program for the recent meeting in Hurley featured Corwin Sharp, site director of the Senate House in Kingston, who showed slides of the recent renovations in the structure. The show pictured the Senate House as recreating an authentic middle-class home of 1777.

A joint committee from the town board and the Bicentennial commission will plant a tree at the West Hurley Library to mark Arbor Day. Ernest Myer will represent the commission and Jack Rose the town board. Details will be announced at a later date.

The next meeting of the commission will be held Thursday, March 24, in West Hurley.

Olive Board to Hear Prattsville Power Plan

SHOKAN — Councilman Peter Tosi will report on the proposed Prattsville pumped storage electric facility when the Olive Town Board meets at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Veterans Hall on Mountain Road in Shokan.

Tosi represented the town board at recent hearings on the facility held in Kingston by the Power Authority of the State of New York.

Supervisor Vincent Barringer is expected to name the dates for two informational meetings to be held in March.

All interested residents are invited to attend the board meeting.
